Media Advisory

San Antonio – Although the 2008-2009 school year has come to a close, summer school has begun for various school districts City-wide. The Department of Public Works would like to encourage all motorists to err on the side of caution and be observant of flashing beacons in school zones when driving. Students who attend summer school may still be walking to their neighborhood school to either attend classes or be picked up by bus and taken to a summer school campus, therefore school zones are still in effect.

If flashing beacons are in operation, please continue to slow down to the required speed limit. If there are any questions regarding a flashing beacon in a school zone that is part of your daily commute, after arriving at your destination, please call 311 and report the location. Public Works will then identify whether the flashing beacon is programmed in accordance to a school district's summer schedule.
